INTRODUCTION

This guide tells you about the benefits and tax credits you can get if you are disabled or ill. Some of these benefits are non-means-tested – you can get them without having to declare how much income or savings you have.

You don't have to have paid National Insurance contributions to get any of the benefits in this guide, except for Incapacity Benefit and contribution-based Jobseeker's Allowance.

This guide has been written for people who are living at home, but also has sections on what happens to your benefits if you have a stay in hospital or a care home.

If you already get a means-tested benefit such as Income Support or Housing Benefit, any new benefits you claim might affect what you get. You will find a note with each of the benefits in this guide saying how your means-tested benefits will be affected.

If you're not sure about whether you qualify for any of the benefits or tax credits, or if you want more information, you can get free advice from your local disability organisation (see page 60) or Citizens Advice Bureau (see back page).

DISABILITY LIVING ALLOWANCE

Disability Living Allowance is for people with a physical or mental illness or disability who need:

- help with personal care or supervision to avoid danger to themselves or others, or
- help with getting around outdoors, or
- help with both of these.

You can only get Disability Living Allowance if you first need help with personal care or getting around before you are 65. Once it is awarded it will continue to be paid irrespective of age, provided the criteria continue to be met. There is no help with mobility needs if you first need help getting around after you are 65. If you are over the age of 65 you may get help with personal care needs by claiming Attendance Allowance (see page 12).

Disability Living Allowance is non-contributory, tax-free and paid on top of other benefits. You can be working and entitled to Disability Living Allowance.

CONDITIONS OF ENTITLEMENT

Disability Living Allowance has two separate components:

- a care component, paid at three levels
- a mobility component, paid at two levels

You can claim either or both components.

Qualifying period

You must have required the help for three months and be likely to need it for the next six months to qualify for the benefit, unless you are terminally ill, in which case you can qualify straightaway.

How much is Disability Living Allowance?

Care Component	Mobility Component
£67.00 higher rate	£46.75 higher rate
£44.85 middle rate	£17.75 lower rate
£17.75 lower rate

Can I get the care component of Disability Living Allowance?

You can claim if you or your child need attention or supervision due to some physical or mental disability.

You can qualify for the lower care component (£17.75) if you need help for part of the day with personal care, or, if you are 16 or over and you could not prepare a cooked main meal for yourself if the ingredients were provided.

You must satisfy at least one of the following conditions to qualify for the middle rate of care component. If you satisfy both, or are terminally ill you qualify for the higher rate of the care component.

By day, you must:

- need frequent help throughout the day with 'bodily functions', or
- need continual supervision to avoid danger to yourself or others.

By night, you must:

- need prolonged or repeated attention in connection with your 'bodily functions', or
- need watching over in order to avoid substantial danger to yourself or others.

The kind of things that count as attention with bodily functions are:

- getting in or out of bed
- taking a bath or shower
- getting dressed or undressed
- getting up or down stairs
- using the toilet or commode
- eating
- washing yourself
- making a cup of tea
- shaving
- doing your hair
- seeing (eg. someone reading things for you)
- hearing (eg. interpreting for a deaf person)

When you look at supervision ask yourself – do you need someone close by because, for example, you:

- are unsteady on your feet
- are liable to have falls and accidents
- cannot pull yourself up in bed or out of a chair
- cannot see or hear very well
- find it hard to make simple decisions
- don't really understand when something is dangerous
- are likely to have fits or seizures and you can't always call somebody before the attack starts

You can get Disability Living Allowance whether or not you have somebody who looks after you or you live alone.

- Special rules apply for some people undergoing renal dialysis, helping them to qualify for the middle rate of the care component. You must undergo renal dialysis two or more times a week. You must also require the attendance or supervision of another person because of the type of dialysis it is or because of your circumstances (eg. visual impairment). These rules may not help you pass the disability test for the care component if you are an outpatient and have help from hospital staff.

If you are applying for a baby or child under 16, you need to show that the child needs substantially more help, or help of a different kind, than a child of his or her age would need.

Terminal illness

You normally have to wait until you have needed help for three months before you can get Disability Living Allowance. However, if you have a terminal illness you should qualify for the higher rate care component immediately, regardless of the amount of care you need.

Terminal illness means an illness which is likely to limit life expectancy to six months or less.

Another person can apply on behalf of someone who is terminally ill, without their knowledge or consent.

How much is the care component?

If you need care both day and night, or you are terminally ill, you will get the higher rate of £67.00 per week.

If you need care either by day or night you will get the middle rate of £44.85 per week.

If you need help during just part of the day, you will get the lower rate of £17.75 per week.

If you are 16 or over and you could not plan, prepare and cook a main meal by yourself (even if you never have to do this) – you will get the lower rate of £17.75 per week.

Can I get the mobility component of Disability Living Allowance?

The mobility component may be paid if you need help to get around. It is paid at two levels, lower and higher. The higher rate mobility component can be claimed from the age of 3; the lower rate from age 5. You must claim before you reach the age of 65. Once payable there is no upper age limit providing you continue to satisfy the criteria.

Am I entitled?

For the higher rate, £46.75 per week:

- you are unable to walk because of a physical disability, or
- virtually unable to walk because of a physical disability, or
- the exertion required to walk would constitute a danger to your health, or
- you have had both legs or feet amputated or were born without legs or feet, or
- you are both deaf and blind and you need someone with you when you are outdoors, or

- you are severely mentally impaired and have severe behavioural problems and you qualify for the highest rate of Disability Living Allowance care component.

For the lower rate, £17.75 per week:

- you have a physical or mental disability and need guidance or supervision from someone else most of the time when walking out of doors on routes you are not familiar with.

How do I claim?

You can get a claim form from the Disability Benefits Centre for North Yorkshire by ringing 0113 230 9000 (textphone 08457 22 44 33) or from the Benefit Enquiry Line (see below).

- The Benefit Enquiry Line (BEL) is a benefits
- help line for people with disabilities, their
- carers and representatives. BEL is part of the
- Department for Work and Pensions. They offer
- confidential advice and information on benefits
- and how to claim them. They can also send out
- leaflets and claim packs.
- Tel: 0800 88 22 00, Textphone 0800 24 33 55
- 8.30am - 6.30pm Monday - Friday; 9am - 1pm
- Saturday.

You can also download a claim form or claim online at www.direct.gov.uk

There is a claim pack for people over the age of 16 years and a different one for children. The claim form is very long and detailed. It helps the Disability Benefits Centre deal with your claim more quickly if a statement about your care/mobility needs is counter-signed by someone who knows about how your illnesses or disabilities affect you. This could be someone who looks after you, a carer, a relative, a friend, a social worker, a nurse or a doctor. The person counter-signing the form does not have to verify all the detailed care needs or mobility problems you describe in your claim.

The majority of people who claim Disability Living Allowance will be assessed on the evidence they give in the claim pack. However, the Department for Work and Pensions may seek further medical evidence from your GP about your condition, or you may be asked to undergo a medical examination.

What if I disagree with the decision?

If you are not happy with a decision made by the decision maker, you have a choice:

- you can ask for a revision of your claim, with the option to appeal to a tribunal if still not happy, or
- you can appeal to the independent Tribunals Service.

You should make your request within one month of the date the decision was sent to you.

If you ask for a revision the Department for Work and Pensions will look again at the evidence, and you will be given a written decision saying whether the original decision has been upheld or changed. If you apply within one month of the original decision, any benefit awarded can be backdated to your original claim.

If you want to appeal to a tribunal you must normally do so in writing, within one month of the decision you do not agree with. This time-limit can sometimes be extended up to 13 months if you have 'special reasons', but it is best to appeal within the one month limit if at all possible.

When asking for a revision or appeal it is worth getting advice from an independent advice agency, such as a Citizens Advice Bureau.

Will Disability Living Allowance affect my other benefits?

Disability Living Allowance is paid on top of all other benefits including the following means-tested benefits: Income Support, Pension Credit, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, Housing Benefit, Council Tax Benefit, and tax credits. If you, or your child, get any rate of DLA you may qualify for an extra amount of any means-tested benefits you claim. If you receive the middle or higher level of the care component your carer (if you have one) may be entitled to Carer's Allowance and the carer premium or addition on their means-tested benefits.

Motability, road tax and Blue Badge

If you get the higher rate of mobility component, you can use the money towards leasing a car under the Motability Scheme if you wish. You need at least a 12 month award to do this. For further details contact the Motability scheme by ringing 0845 456 4566 (textphone 01279 632273) or visit their website www.motability.co.uk. You will also be entitled to free road tax from the Vehicle Licensing Agency and a Blue Badge from Social Services to help with parking.

ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE

Attendance Allowance is paid to people aged 65 or over who need help with personal care or supervision.

Attendance Allowance is non-contributory, tax-free and can be paid on top of other benefits.

Can I get Attendance Allowance?

The qualifying conditions are the same as the higher and middle rate care components of Disability Living Allowance, (see page 6).

You will qualify if you:

- need help with bodily functions, like washing, dressing, using the toilet, seeing, hearing and so on, or
- need continual supervision to avoid danger to yourself or others, or
- are terminally ill (see page 7).

You must have needed this help for the last six months (unless you are terminally ill).

You can get Attendance Allowance whether or not you have anybody who looks after you or you live on your own.

There are special rules for some people undergoing renal dialysis to help them qualify for Attendance Allowance at the lower rate. See the section for Disability Living Allowance care component on page 7 to see who qualifies.

How much will I get?

If you need care both during the day and at night, or if you are terminally ill, you will get the lower rate of £67.00.

If you need care either during the day or during the night, you will get the higher rate of £44.85.

How will Attendance Allowance affect other benefits?

Attendance Allowance is paid on top of all other benefits. It will not reduce any other benefit and it may actually increase others. Attendance Allowance can also qualify you for the severe disability addition so you might get extra Pension Credit, Housing Benefit or Council Tax Benefit. See the sections in this guide about Pension Credit, Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit.

How do I claim?

You can get a claim form from the Disability Benefits Centre for North Yorkshire by ringing 0113 230 9000 (textphone 08457 22 44 33) or from the Benefit Enquiry Line (see page 9).

You can also claim online at www.direct.gov.uk.

It is important to give full details about your needs.

The majority of people who claim Attendance Allowance will be assessed on the evidence they give in the claim pack. However, the Department for Work and Pensions may seek further medical evidence from your GP about your condition, or you may be asked to undergo a medical examination.

- Note: A relative or friend can apply for the
- allowance on behalf of any sick or disabled
- person who is unable to apply for themselves.
- There is a space on the claim form to explain
- why the disabled person cannot sign the form.

What if I disagree with the decision?

If you are not happy with a decision you can ask the Department for Work and Pensions to consider your claim again or appeal to the Tribunals Service. See page 10 for more details.

CARER'S ALLOWANCE

If somebody is caring for you they might be able to get Carer's Allowance, if:

- you are getting Disability Living Allowance care component middle or higher rate, or any rate of Attendance Allowance, and
- the carer looks after you for at least 35 hours a week (it does not have to be every day), and
- the carer is not earning more than £95 a week on average, and
- the carer is aged 16 or over and
- the carer does not study for 21 hours or more a week.

Carer's Allowance is non-contributory and taxable.

Carer's Allowance is also available if you are caring for a child on Disability Living Allowance care component middle or higher rate. It doesn't matter whether or not the carer is related to you or lives with you.

How much is it?

£50.55 for the person who does the caring plus an extra amount of £30.20 for a spouse or partner in some cases.

How does my carer claim?

Claim by calling Jobcentre Plus on 0800 0 55 66 88 (textphone 0800 0 23 48 88) or by ringing the Benefit Enquiry Line on 0800 88 22 00 (see page 9).

You can download a claim form or claim online at www.direct.gov.uk.

The claim pack includes a statement to be signed by the disabled person to verify that they know someone is claiming Carer's Allowance for looking after them for 35 hours a week.

How does Carer's Allowance affect other benefits?

Some carers who are getting other benefits will be no better off in immediate cash terms if they claim Carer's Allowance. This is because you cannot be paid Carer's Allowance at the same time as you get certain other benefits such as contribution-based Jobseeker's Allowance, State Pension, Incapacity Benefit or bereavement benefits. If you qualify for Carer's Allowance and one of these overlapping benefits, you will normally get whichever of them is the higher.

Carer's Allowance counts in full as income for means-tested benefits such as Income Support, Pension Credit and Housing Benefit.

If a carer either gets paid Carer's Allowance or is entitled to it but is not paid because of the overlapping benefits rules, then:

- An extra amount (the carer premium or addition) will be added to means-tested benefits, giving up to £27.75 a week more benefit.
- £20 a week of any earnings they have will be ignored in working out any means-tested benefits they claim.
- Each week Carer's Allowance is claimed, they will be credited with Class 1 National Insurance contributions and credits for the State Second Pension.
- They will get a £10 Christmas Bonus.

If the carer does not receive these benefits, they could check any possible entitlement with the Citizens Advice Bureau or a carer's organisation.

- Note: See also, information about the severe
- disability premium on page 36.
- A person being cared for cannot get the severe
- disability premium or addition if their carer is
- paid Carer's Allowance – seek advice.

INCAPACITY BENEFIT

Incapacity Benefit is for people unable to work because of illness or disability. Usually you must have paid enough National Insurance contributions to qualify.

If you are under 20, or under 25 and were in full-time education or training, and have been incapable of work for 28 weeks you can claim Incapacity Benefit in Youth and you do not have to satisfy the National Insurance contribution conditions.

■ Employment and Support Allowance ■

■ Employment and Support Allowance is a new ■
 ■ benefit for people with limited capability for ■
 ■ work because of illness or disability. It is due to ■
 ■ be introduced in October 2008. It will replace ■
 ■ both Incapacity Benefit and Income Support ■
 ■ paid on the grounds of incapacity, for new ■
 ■ claimants. See page 25 for more information. ■

Incapacity Benefit is taxable, apart from the short-term lower rate which is tax-free. It counts in full as income for means-tested benefits which includes Income Support, Pension Credit, Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit. It gives you an entitlement to the disability premium after 52 weeks of sickness if claiming a means-tested benefit (or after 28 weeks if you are entitled to Disability Living Allowance highest rate component or you are terminally ill).

How much is it?

Incapacity Benefit is paid at three different weekly rates.

Short-term lower rate - £63.75

Payable for the first 28 weeks of sickness if you are not entitled to Statutory Sick Pay – or after 28 weeks of sickness if you qualify under the Incapacity Benefit in Youth rules.

Short-term higher rate - £75.40

Payable from 29 weeks – 52 weeks (56 – 80 weeks if claiming under the Incapacity Benefit in Youth rules)

Long-term rate - £84.50

Payable after 52 weeks – or 80 weeks if claiming under the Incapacity Benefit in Youth rules or from 29 weeks if you are in receipt of Disability Living Allowance higher care component or you are terminally ill

Age addition paid with the long-term rate:

incapacity began before age 35	£17.75
incapacity began between 35 and 44	£8.90

- Note: Sometimes an extra amount can be paid
- for a spouse or partner.

The effect of pensions

Your award of Incapacity Benefit will be reduced if you have an occupational or personal pension or personal health insurance (arranged by your employer and paid after you have left employment) over £85 gross a week. The reduction will be 50% of any pension over £85 a week.

- Example: If you have £95 a week occupational
- pension, the first £85 per week is ignored, and
- 50% of the remaining £10 per week is counted.
- £5 per week will be deducted from your
- Incapacity Benefit.

Anyone getting Disability Living Allowance higher rate care component or who was receiving Incapacity Benefit on 6th April 2001 or was transferred from Severe Disablement Allowance to Incapacity Benefit in Youth after 5th April 2002 will not be affected by this rule.

Incapacity for work test

For the first 28 weeks of incapacity, you will usually be assessed against your ability to do your own job, based on certificates provided by your doctor. After 28 weeks the Personal Capability Assessment is applied. You will undergo a medical test by a doctor on behalf of Medical Services (contracted by the Department for Work and Pensions), unless you are exempted. You will not have to take the Personal Capability Assessment if you:

- get Disability Living Allowance care component at the highest rate, or
- are terminally ill, or
- have a certain prescribed medical condition, or
- are registered blind.

The Personal Capability Assessment is used to determine if you are incapable of work. The test ignores any lack of skills or experience preventing you from getting a job. For example, if you cannot do manual work due to a physical disablement, but cannot do office work only for lack of skills, you would be seen as capable of work and disqualified from Incapacity Benefit.

You are sent a form called an IB50 which asks you questions about your ability to do certain types of physical tasks: walking, climbing stairs, sitting, standing, bending, lifting, reaching, speech, hearing, seeing, controlling your bladder and bowels and whether you have fits or seizures. It also asks questions about your mental health.

To be treated as unfit for all work on physical grounds, you have to score 15 or more points on this test.

Some examples of the scores are:

- Cannot walk more than 50 metres without stopping or severe discomfort 15
- Cannot sit comfortably for more than 30 minutes without having to move from the chair 7
- Cannot hear well enough to understand someone talking in a normal voice on a busy street 8

Some of the questions are tricky to answer. For example, you may be able to do something but only with a lot of pain. If this is the case you should say you cannot do the task. Use the spaces on the form to explain about pain and fatigue and difficulties in repeating tasks.

It is very important if you have any doubts about filling in this form that you seek help from an advice worker at your local disability organisation or Citizens Advice Bureau (see the lists at the back of this guide).

What if I have mental health problems?

Your own doctor will be asked about your mental health problems. If your doctor says the problems are severe, you will usually be treated as unfit for all work without further assessment.

If your doctor says you have moderate or mild problems, you will be sent the IB50 questionnaire. This has a small section on mental health but is mostly about your physical health in case you have physical problems as well. You will be asked to attend a medical examination and the doctor will ask you questions to try and find out more about your mental health.

The questions consider problems you have with daily living, your reaction to pressure and how you cope with tasks.

If you score 10 on this test, you will be treated as being incapable of all work. If you score at least 6 on this test, you will have a score of 9 added to your physical test score if you have any points on this test. If this brings your overall score to 15 or more, you will also be treated as incapable of work.

Other criteria

If you score under 15 points (10 for mental health problems) the Department for Work and Pensions will also consider if there are any other criteria which should be taken into account. For example, if you are awaiting a major operation, or you have a previously undiagnosed life threatening illness, you will still be treated as unfit for work.

Found 'fit for work'

If the Department for Work and Pensions decide you are capable of work, your benefit will stop. You have the right to appeal against the decision.

In the meantime you can sign on as soon as possible as available for work at Jobcentre Plus. If you sign on you can claim Jobseeker's Allowance. You will have to indicate that you are available and seeking some kind of paid work in order to claim this benefit. You can restrict your availability for work if the restrictions are reasonable in view of your physical or mental condition. See page 38 for more details about Jobseeker's Allowance.

You will not be penalised at your appeal because you have said that you are capable of some work. By signing on you will get the normal full amount of Jobseeker's Allowance that you are entitled to and you will also get National Insurance credits.

If you do not wish to sign on you can claim Income Support instead up to the appeal. However this is a means-tested benefit and you may not be entitled to it. Also, by claiming Income Support instead of Jobseeker's Allowance you will normally get a reduced rate of benefit and will not receive National Insurance credits, although the credits will be backdated if you are successful in your appeal.

It is important to get help and advice when you appeal; see where you can get advice at the back of this guide.

Rules about working

A person claiming a benefit on the grounds of incapacity can do permitted work. You can:

- earn a maximum of £20 a week for an unlimited period, or
- work for less than 16 hours a week and earn up to the earnings limit (currently £88.50 a week) for up to 52 weeks, or
- earn up to the earnings limit (currently £88.50 a week) for an unlimited period if you are exempt from the Personal Capability Assessment or in supported or sheltered employment.

You must inform the Department for Work and Pensions that you are working. Earnings may have an impact on any means-tested benefits you are claiming. Seek advice.

The earnings limit for permitted work is linked to the National Minimum Wage and is approximately 16 times the highest rate. There are different minimum wage rates for different groups as follows:

- aged 22 or over £5.52 (£5.73 from October 2008)
- aged 18 – 21 £4.60 (£4.77 from October 2008)
- aged under 18 £3.40 (£3.53 from October 2008)

The earnings limit increases in October in line with the National Minimum Wage.

You are allowed to do unpaid voluntary work for anyone other than a close relative.

How do I claim?

Claim by calling Jobcentre Plus on 0800 0 55 66 88 (textphone 0800 0 23 48 88). A form will be completed over the phone. You will be asked to attend a work-focused interview unless the Department for Work and Pensions agree to defer the interview or waive attendance because the interview would 'not be of assistance' or 'appropriate'.

EMPLOYMENT AND SUPPORT ALLOWANCE

Employment and Support Allowance is a new benefit for people with limited capability for work because of illness or disability. It is due to be introduced in October 2008. It will replace both Incapacity Benefit and Income Support paid on the grounds of incapacity, for new claimants.

You must satisfy one of the following:

- National Insurance contributions test
- under age 20 (or 25 in certain cases)
- low income test

When you claim you will undergo a 13-week assessment period involving a Work and Capability Assessment, a Work-focused Health-related Assessment and work-focused interviews. During this time you will receive the basic allowance. A lower amount is paid for under 25 year olds during the assesment period.

If it is decided that you have limited capability for work you will be placed in one of two groups and be entitled to an additional component:

- 1 The work-related activity group. You will have to meet mandatory work-related conditions in order to continue receiving the benefit in full. You must attend further work-focused interviews and take part in work-related activities (eg. work trials and job-search assistance).
- 2 The support group. You will not have to undertake work-related activities (although you can choose to do so).

Weekly Rate:

Basic allowance

Single £60.50

Work-related activity component £24.00

Support component £29.00

Your income-related Employment and Support Allowance will be calculated in a similar way to Income Support (see page 36). However, it will not include the disability premium, which the additional payments are meant to replace.

- If you receive Employment and Support
- Allowance it is expected to impact on other
- benefits in the same way as Incapacity
- Benefit or Income Support.

If you are already getting Incapacity Benefit or Income Support when Employment and Support Allowance is introduced you will continue on that benefit under the existing rules for the time being. The Work Capacity Assessment may be introduced for some claimants in 2009. The government intends to transfer everyone onto Employment and Support Allowance but the timetable for this has not yet been confirmed.

How to claim

Claim through Jobcentre Plus on 0800 0 55 66 88 (textphone 0800 0 23 48 88).

SEVERE DISABLEMENT ALLOWANCE

Severe Disablement Allowance is for people unable to work because of illness or disability. It was abolished for all new claimants from 6th April 2001. If you were aged 20 or over on 5th April 2001 you will continue to get Severe Disablement Allowance indefinitely providing you meet the other conditions of entitlement.

Severe Disablement Allowance is non-taxable and counts in full for means-tested benefits which includes Income Support, Pension Credit, Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit.

How much is it?

Claimant £51.05

Plus £17.75 if incapacity began before age 40
 £11.40 if incapacity began before age 50
 £5.70 if incapacity began before age 60

- Note: An extra amount of £30.40 will be paid ■
- for a spouse or partner in some cases. ■

TAX CREDITS

Child Tax Credit gives financial help to people who have children. Working Tax Credit is for claimants who are in work but on a low income. You can get both if you have children and are in paid work. The Revenue is responsible for administering tax credits.

Can I get Child Tax Credit?

You can claim Child Tax Credit if you are responsible for a child or young person who normally lives with you. You must be at least 16. If you are part of a couple you make a joint claim.

A child or young person is included in your claim until the 31st August following their 16th birthday, or up to 20 in full-time non-advanced education or in unwaged work-based training.

You do not need to be working to get Child Tax Credit.

The amount of Child Tax Credit you receive depends on the number of children you are responsible for and your income. Extra amounts are included if your child is disabled.

Can I get Working Tax Credit?

Working Tax Credit gives financial help to working people on low incomes.

You have to be working 16 hours a week if you are:

- responsible for a dependent child, or
- disabled, or
- over 50 and you are returning to work after a period on specified benefits.

If you are not in any of the above groups you have to be aged 25 or over and work at least 30 hours a week.

The amount of Working Tax Credit depends on your circumstances, for example the number of hours you work and your disability. If you have children you may qualify for help towards the cost of childcare.

In order to qualify for Working Tax Credit on the grounds that you are ill or disabled you must show that you have a disability which puts you at a disadvantage in getting a job (this is called a disability test) and you must have been recently been in receipt of some form of disability benefit (this is called a qualifying benefit test).

The disability test provides 21 descriptors relating to your ability to perform a range of activities such as:

- when standing you cannot keep your balance unless you continually hold onto something
- you cannot extend either of your arms in front of you so as to shake hands with another person without difficulty
- you are registered blind or partially sighted
- due to a mental disability you are often confused or forgetful

The qualifying benefit test refers to being in receipt of specified benefits, such as Incapacity Benefit, Disability Living Allowance or Statutory Sick Pay. There are several ways to fulfil the qualifying benefit test – seek advice.

■ Example: Pamela has been on Incapacity Benefit for several years and has been working under the permitted work rules for the past few months for 8 hours a week. She has been offered an increase of hours up to 16 hours a week. She is single and would earn an annual gross salary of £6,500. If Pamela accepts the increased hours she would not be entitled to Incapacity Benefit but she would be awarded Working Tax Credit. For the first year Pamela would be entitled to around £81 Working Tax Credit a week (or £4,205 a year). This includes an additional amount called a disability element.

How do I claim?

You claim on form TC600, available from Jobcentre Plus and Revenue enquiry centres. You can also make a claim over the phone by ringing 0845 300 3900 (textphone 0845 3003909) or download a claim form from www.hmrc.gov.uk

Final award

Tax credits are assessed on an annual basis. The income used to determine the award at the beginning of a year is an estimate of that year's income. Tax credit awards are provisional and are subject to a final assessment at the end of the tax year.

Your award letter informs you of any changes in circumstances that you need to tell the Revenue about.

DISABLEMENT SCHEMES

INDUSTRIAL INJURIES SCHEME

Disablement Benefit

You can claim if you suffer 'loss of faculty' as the result of an industrial accident or suffer from a prescribed disease. Loss of faculty is measured in percentage terms (eg. 80% disabled). It is payable according to the percentage you are assessed at, subject to a minimum assessment of 14% (except for certain respiratory diseases where 1% is sufficient).

Maximum rate: £136.80 a week

It is non-contributory, tax free and payable on top of any other non-means-tested benefit. Although counted in full as income for means-tested benefits it is ignored for tax credit purposes.

Constant Attendance Allowance

Constant Attendance Allowance is automatically considered when your disablement assessment totals 95% or more. Your need for care and attention must be a result of an industrial accident or disease.

Reduced Earnings Allowance

Reduced Earnings Allowance is payable if you suffer 'loss of faculty' due to an industrial accident or disease, which results in you being assessed as at least 1% disabled.

New claims can only be made for accidents or diseases which occurred before October 1990.

Payable up to maximum of: £54.72 a week

You must have been continuously incapable of your previous normal job since the accident happened or the illness started, and are currently unable to earn as much as you would in your previous job.

Retirement Allowance

Retirement Allowance replaces Reduced Earnings Allowance when you reach age 60 (if you are a woman) or 65 (if you are a man) if your Reduced Earnings Allowance is at least £2.00 a week and you are not in regular employment.

Retirement Allowance is paid for life. The weekly rate depends on the amount of Disablement Benefit or Reduced Earnings Allowance you were entitled to.

Payable up to a maximum of £13.68 a week.

You do not need to claim Retirement Allowance. The Department for Work and Pensions will send you a letter to complete before reaching State Pension age.

How do I claim

You can get a claim from the Benefit Enquiry Line telephone (see page 9). State the nature of the accident or disease so that the correct claim form can be sent to you. You can also download a form from www.direct.gov.uk

ARMED FORCES SCHEMES

Armed Forces Compensation Scheme

The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme is the compensation package for members of the armed forces for all injuries and deaths due to service that occur from April 2005. The scheme includes:

- Lump sum awards for significant injuries and illnesses. These can be paid if you remain in service or you have left the armed forces.
- A Guaranteed Income Payment for life will be awarded if you suffer significant loss of earnings capacity.
- A Survivors Guaranteed Income Payment is payable to a surviving partner or children where the service person's death was caused by service.

The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme replaced the War Pensions Scheme in April 2005. Those already receiving benefits under the War Pensions Scheme will continue to do so.

The scheme is administered by the Veterans Agency. You can get a claim form from the Veterans Helpline on 0800 169 2277. See also www.direct.gov.uk

War Pensions Scheme

The War Pensions Scheme is for ex-service personnel whose service prior to April 2005 caused disablement or death. The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme has replaced this scheme for injuries, illnesses or death occurring after April 2005.

The War Disablement Pension provides you with a weekly pension or a one-off lump sum, depending on degree of disablement. Further allowances are also payable (eg. Mobility Supplement, Constant Attendance Allowance).

A War Widow's/Widower's Pension may be paid to surviving spouses, civil partners or partners.

INCOME SUPPORT

Income Support provides basic living costs for people under 60. You can claim Income Support if you have no other money coming in each week, or to top up your weekly income. You must have savings of £16,000 or less. If you are 60 or over you can claim Pension Credit instead.

You can claim Income Support when you do not have to sign-on (eg. lone parent, carer or incapable of work).

■ Employment and Support Allowance

■ Employment and Support Allowance is a new benefit
 ■ for people with limited capability for work because of ■ illness or disability. It is due to be introduced in October
 ■ 2008. It will replace both Incapacity Benefit and Income
 ■ Support paid on the grounds of incapacity, for new
 ■ claimants. See page 25 for more information.

If you have children you can also claim Child Tax Credit. If you are already claiming Income Support for your family the child elements will be replaced by Child Tax Credit, this is expected to happen by January 2009.

If you are aged between 16 and 20 and you are in education or training you may be able to claim Income Support if:

- you qualify for the disability premium or severe disability premium (see page 36), or
- you have been incapable of work for 28 weeks or more (see page 20).

You may also be able to claim Incapacity Benefit in Youth (see page 18). This will affect any benefit or tax credits claims that your parents have for you. Seek advice for a 'better off' calculation.

How much Income Support will I get?

The amount of Income Support you are entitled to is worked out according to a needs figure for you, and your partner if you have one, and any relevant housing costs. You will be allowed a certain amount to live on depending on your circumstances. The needs figure for a single person aged 25 or over is £60.50; for a couple, both aged over 18, it is £94.95. Extra amounts called premiums are included for certain groups of claimants.

The disability premium is an extra £25.85 per week if you are single or £36.85 for a couple. It is included in your needs calculation if you have been incapable of work for 52 weeks or more, or you or your partner are on Disability Living Allowance or registered blind.

The enhanced disability premium is an extra £12.60 per week if you are single or £18.15 for a couple. It is included in your needs calculation if you, or your partner, get Disability Living Allowance higher care component.

The severe disability premium is an extra £50.35 per week per person who qualifies. It is included if you receive Disability Living Allowance at the middle or higher rate, no one gets paid Carer's Allowance for looking after you and you live alone. Some people are ignored when deciding if you live alone – a landlord or another disabled person for example. A lot of people miss out on the severe disability premium so it is best to seek advice. Also, it will stop if someone gets paid Carer's Allowance for looking after you (but not if they claim it but don't receive it – see page 16). Seek advice for a better-off calculation.

The carer premium of £27.75 per week per carer is included in your needs calculation if you or your partner are entitled to Carer's Allowance even if it is not paid because you are getting another benefit (eg. Incapacity Benefit).

Your mortgage interest may be allowed as part of your needs figure.

The needs figure is compared with the income you, and your partner, are treated as having each week. Income Support tops up the difference between your income and your needs.

Add up all your income, including most benefits. Do not count Disability Living Allowance or Attendance Allowance, or Child Benefit and Child Tax Credit. Also ignore up to £20 of any earnings from part-time work if you can get the disability premium or carer premium.

What if I claim Income Support already?

Make sure Jobcentre Plus know about your disability or illness. You may be entitled to more money.

How do I claim?

Claim by calling Jobcentre Plus on 0800 0 55 66 88 (textphone 0800 0 23 48 88). A form will be completed over the phone. You are usually expected to attend a work-focused interview.

Extra help

As well as extra cash, Income Support can entitle you to free school meals, free dental treatment, free eye tests, vouchers for glasses, free prescriptions, refund of travel costs to hospital, access to grants from the Social Fund, Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit.

PENSION CREDIT

Pension Credit is for people aged 60 or over. It consists of two parts:

- Guarantee credit ensures that no one aged 60 or over lives on less than a set amount. This is £124.05 for a single person and £189.35 for a couple. Extra amounts may be paid on top of this if you qualify for the severe disability addition (£50.35), you are a carer (£27.75) or you have relevant housing costs.
- Savings credit is payable to those aged 65 or over who have modest savings and additional income. For example, savings over £6,000 or income from an occupational pension. The maximum amount of savings credit you can get is £19.71 for a single person or £26.13 for a couple.

Savings credit can be paid on top of guarantee credit or on its own if you do not qualify for guarantee credit.

How do I claim?

Claim by calling the Pension Credit application line - 0800 99 1234 (textphone 0800 169 0133). You can also load a claim form from www.direct.gov.uk

JOBSEEKER'S ALLOWANCE

Jobseeker's Allowance can be claimed by people who are unemployed or working less than 16 hours a week. You have to be available for and actively seeking work.

There are two types of Jobseeker's Allowance:

- Contribution-based Jobseeker's Allowance is based on your National Insurance contributions and is paid for a maximum of 26 weeks.
- Income-based Jobseeker's Allowance is means-tested and calculated in the same way as Income Support (see page 36).

They can be claimed separately or together.

You will have to sign a Jobseeker's agreement that describes the type and hours of work you can do and lists the action you are expected to take to find work. When you go to Jobcentre Plus to sign on make sure that you let them know about any physical or mental health problems that you have. This is important because you can place reasonable restrictions on what you can do at work and the number of hours you can work. If the restrictions are reasonable in view of your physical or mental condition you do not have to prove you have a reasonable prospect of getting a job.

If you have been refused Incapacity Benefit and have appealed against the decision you may be able to claim Jobseeker's Allowance. This does not affect your chance of winning your appeal and you will protect your National Insurance credits.

How do I claim?

Claim by calling Jobcentre Plus on 0800 0 55 66 88, (textphone 0800 0 23 48 88). You are expected to attend a work-focused interview.

HOUSING BENEFIT

Housing Benefit helps you pay your rent. You can claim Housing Benefit if you have a low enough income and £16,000 or less in savings. The savings limit does not apply to people over 60 who receive Pension Credit guarantee credit.

If you are on Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance or Pension Credit guarantee credit or a similar level of income, you will get the full help available.

- You may not get all your rent covered if you have other adults living with you who can contribute towards costs. If you or your partner are on any level of Disability Living Allowance care component, Attendance Allowance or registered blind, then no deductions are made for other adults living in the household.
- Certain items may not be covered by Housing Benefit (eg. charges for meals or fuel).
- If you are a private tenant, the amount of rent included in your Housing Benefit calculation may be less than you actually pay.
- If you are a private tenant and you come under the Local Housing Allowance scheme (introduced April 2008), the amount of rent included in your Housing Benefit may be up to £15 a week more than you actually pay.
- A disability premium, enhanced disability and/or severe disability premium may be included in your Housing Benefit calculation (see page 36).
- If you get the disability premium you will be able to earn £20 before your Housing Benefit is affected.

- For each £1 you have above Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance or Pension Credit guarantee credit level, you lose 65p in Housing Benefit.
- It is important to remember to tell the Housing Benefit section as well as the Department for Work and Pensions when any changes happen to you or your partner.

How do I claim?

Your claim for Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance or Pension Credit can include a claim for Housing Benefit. Otherwise contact your local authority for a claim form.

COUNCIL TAX AND COUNCIL TAX BENEFIT

Council Tax is a property-based tax. Usually the resident of the property will be liable to pay the Council Tax. Where more than one person is liable for the Council Tax bill, they are liable for their own proportion of the bill but can also be held responsible if the others do not pay. This is known as joint and several liability.

How can I pay less Council Tax?

Disability Reduction Scheme

Council Tax can be reduced if the house is occupied by someone who is permanently and substantially disabled and has been provided with another bathroom, kitchen or other room or has sufficient space to move a wheelchair around. Council Tax for properties in bands B to H can be reduced by one banding rate. Band A properties will be reduced by one-sixth of your bill.

Discounts

If you live alone you will get 25% discount on your Council Tax bill. You will also get a 25% discount if only one person is treated as living in the house because the others do not count as residents (eg. someone who is severely mentally impaired or in hospital).

If no one lives in the house or the house is treated as having no residents, you will get a 50% discount on the bill. However your local authority can reduce or remove the discount in some cases (eg. if you have a second home).

If your house is empty it may be exempt from Council Tax. Check with your local authority.

Second Adult Rebate

Some Council Tax payers, who are not themselves on a low income, may still get a rebate because they live with other adults who are on a low income. You may be able to get up to a 25% discount under the Second Adult Rebate scheme. Contact your local council for more information.

Council Tax Benefit

You can claim Council Tax Benefit if you have a low income and £16,000 or less in savings. The savings limit does not apply to people aged 60 and over who receive Pension Credit guarantee credit.

The rules for awarding Council Tax Benefit are similar to Housing Benefit (see page 40). If you are on Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, Pension Credit guarantee credit, or a similar level of income you will get the maximum help available.

- You may not get full help from Council Tax
- Benefit if you have other adults living with you.
- However, if you or your partner get Disability
- Living Allowance care component, Attendance
- Allowance or are registered blind, then no
- deductions are made for adults living in the
- household.

For each £1 you have above the Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance or Pension Credit level you lose 20p in Council Tax Benefit.

How to claim: Your claim for Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance or Pension Credit can include a claim for Council Tax Benefit. Otherwise, contact your local authority for a claim form.

How do I claim?

You can usually get a claim form from a chemists. You can also contact Jobcentre Plus on 0800 0 55 66 88 (textphone 0800 0 23 48 88) or ring the Department of Health's publication line on 08701 555 455 (textphone 08700 102 870) .

CARE HOMES

If you are a resident in a care home you must usually pay towards the cost. You may be able to get help with the cost of the home from Income Support, Pension Credit, Social Services and the NHS. The following information is relevant in England only.

If you have capital over £22,250 you must pay the whole cost of the home yourself. This is often called self-funding.

If you have less capital than £22,250 Social Services may help you meet the cost of the care home. Normally, only your own capital counts towards the capital limits, so do not count capital belonging to your spouse or partner.

If you are a permanent resident in a care home and the NHS pays for the total cost of your care, your stay should be free, and for social security purposes you will be treated as a hospital in-patient.

If you receive aftercare services in a care home under section 117 of the Mental Health Act 1983 you should not be charged for your stay. Funding for the stay will come from the NHS, or Social Services, or both.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO MY BENEFITS?

Attendance Allowance and Disability Living Allowance care component are normally payable for a maximum of the first four weeks in care. If you are temporarily in a care home separate stays may be linked if they are close together. If you are a self-funding resident they are payable throughout your stay.

Disability Living Allowance mobility component continues to be paid when in a care home.

You also keep £10 a week of any War Pension or Armed Forces Compensation.

Income Support may be payable if you have under £16,000 capital. Income Support is calculated using a personal allowance plus any premiums you are entitled to, just as if you were living in the community. However, you will not be treated as part of a couple except in limited circumstances when your partner is sharing a room with you or you are in the care home temporarily.

Pension Credit is also payable when you are in a care home. Pension Credit is calculated using a standard minimum guarantee plus any additional amounts you are entitled to, just as if you were living in the community. However, you will not be treated as part of a couple except in limited circumstances when your partner is sharing the room.

WHAT WILL I PAY?

Your Income Support or Pension Credit will not be enough to pay the care home fee. If your capital is under £22,250 you can ask Social Services for a top-up. If Social Services assess you as needing care they will make a contract with the care home. This will fix the amount you have to pay and Social Services will pay the rest. You will be left with at least £21.15 a week for personal expenses. If you are 65 or over you may also be able to keep an additional £5.45 savings disregard, depending on the level of your income and savings.

However, if you choose a home that charges more than Social Services will normally pay, a third party other than your husband or wife (eg. relatives or a charity) will have to pay the difference. You, the resident, can only pay the extra from your own income if Social Services are funding you while you wait for your property to sell.

The NHS is responsible for funding the nursing element of the care (at £101 per week). This is not means-tested. Your benefits, including Attendance Allowance and Disability Living Allowance care component, are not affected.

WHAT ABOUT MY PROPERTY?

Income Support, Pension Credit and Social Services must ignore the value of your house during temporary or 'respite' care. They must also ignore its value while your spouse or partner lives there, or whilst a relative who is age 60 or over, or disabled, lives there.

Income Support and Pension Credit can ignore the value of your home while it is for sale, for at least 26 weeks. A discretionary longer period may be allowed if more time is needed to sell the house.

If your property is taken into account Social Services must ignore the value for the first 12 weeks of your permanent stay in care. After this they will count the value of your house even though it has not yet been sold. They may then lend you the money to pay for the care home, and re-claim it from you once your house is sold. You can claim Attendance Allowance or Disability Living Allowance care component during the time Social Services are lending you the money.

BENEFITS IN HOSPITAL

If you are in an NHS hospital you will continue to receive your full entitlement to State Pension, Incapacity Benefit and Severe Disablement Allowance for an indefinite period (as long as you continue to satisfy the conditions of entitlement for these benefits).

Maternity Allowance, Statutory Maternity/Paternity/Adoption Pay and Statutory Sick Pay are unaffected by a stay in hospital.

Jobseeker's Allowance

If you go into hospital Jobseeker's Allowance can continue for up to two weeks. You are allowed two such periods in each year of your jobseeking period.

When your Jobseeker's Allowance stops you can claim Incapacity Benefit or Income Support instead.

Income Support and Pension Credit

Income Support and Pension Credit may be paid in full for 52 weeks.

If the severe disability premium or addition is included in your benefit calculation this will stop when your Attendance Allowance or Disability Living Allowance ends (usually after 4 weeks, see page 54). However, if you are a member of a couple the severe disability premium or addition will continue in payment at the single person's rate if one or both of you are in hospital.

If you are a member of a couple you will have to claim separately if you are likely to be separated for substantially more than 52 weeks.

Your Income Support will not include the disability premium, enhanced disability premium or higher pensioner premium after 52 weeks in hospital.

Attendance Allowance and Disability Living Allowance

Attendance Allowance and Disability Living Allowance are not paid to adults after 28 days in hospital. If you have a Motability agreement your Disability Living Allowance mobility component can continue to be paid while you are in hospital. For the purpose of deciding how long you have been in hospital, separate stays are added together, unless separated by 29 days or more 'out' of hospital. For Attendance Allowance and Disability Living Allowance the day you enter hospital and the day you leave are both counted as days 'out'. Payments are only 'suspended' – you do not have to prove entitlement again when you leave hospital. Just ask the Disability Benefits Centre to resume paying you.

Disability Living Allowance for children under 16 stops after the child has been in hospital for 12 weeks. This applies to both care and mobility components.

Carer's Allowance

Carer's Allowance stops when the person you look after stops being paid Attendance Allowance or Disability Living Allowance care component. Contact the Carer's Allowance Unit when the person you look after goes into hospital and again when they come out. The carer premium/addition on means-tested benefits can continue to be paid for a further eight weeks.

Carer's Allowance will stop after the carer has been in hospital for 12 weeks. However, it can stop sooner if the carer has had any weeks off from caring in the last 26 weeks. For example, if you have had one week off caring in the last 26 weeks, Carer's Allowance will stop after 11 weeks in hospital. Note, the carer premium/addition can continue to be paid for a further eight weeks.

Child Benefit and Guardian's Allowance

Child Benefit and Guardian's Allowance are paid for the first 12 weeks of your child's stay in hospital. After 12 weeks you can continue to be paid these benefits if you are regularly spending money on your child's behalf (such as making visits or giving pocket money to the child).

Child Tax Credit

If your child is in hospital this does not normally affect your Child Tax Credit.

Working Tax Credit

Your Working Tax Credit can continue to be paid for the first 28 weeks of a period of sickness if you remain employed. Therefore a short stay in hospital should not affect payment.

Housing Costs

Help with housing costs through Income Support, Pension Credit, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, Housing Benefit and Council Tax stops when you have been absent for 52 weeks. Help with housing costs will stop sooner if it becomes clear you will be away from home for longer than 52 weeks. Returning home for a short period (24 hours is usually enough) breaks the period of absence and a new period begins when you re-enter hospital.

THE SOCIAL FUND

You can get grants or loans from the Social Fund to help with various expenses, including the following payments.

Sure Start Maternity Grant: This is a payment of £500 for a new baby (including a baby still-born after 24 weeks pregnancy), or a baby aged less than one year whom you have adopted or care for under a residence order. It is paid if:

- you are on Income Support, Pension Credit or income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, or
- if you receive Child Tax Credit at the maximum rate or any other rate greater than the family element, or
- Working Tax Credit where a disability element is included in the assessment.

You need to claim during the period from 11 weeks before the baby is due to 3 months after the birth. You have to get the claim form signed by an approved health professional declaring you have received appropriate advice.

Funeral Payment: These help to cover the cost of a basic funeral and certain fees and travel expenses. The amount of the payment can be reduced in certain circumstances. The Department for Work and Pensions may recover any payment from the deceased's estate.

To qualify for a payment you must be on Income Support or income-based Jobseeker's Allowance or Pension Credit or Child Tax Credit where more than the family element is paid or Working Tax Credit that includes a disability or severe disability element or Housing Benefit or Council Tax Benefit.

You must be responsible for the funeral and the decision maker must accept this responsibility as reasonable. If it is your partner who has died it will be accepted that you are responsible. In other cases help may be refused if there are other close relatives not on benefit, even if there has been no recent contact with the deceased, providing they are not estranged.

Cold Weather Payments: If you are on Income Support, Pension Credit or on income-based Jobseeker's Allowance and you get a disability premium or are responsible for a disabled child or a child under 5 you will automatically be paid £8.50 for any week throughout which the average temperature has been zero degrees Celcius or below for seven consecutive days.

Winter Fuel Payment: Payable to all households where there is someone aged 60 or over. It is paid every year. You do not have to be claiming a State Pension or any other benefit. In 2008-2009 the amount payable is between £150-£400 depending on your circumstances. You can get a claim form and other information by ringing the Winter Fuel Payments helpline on 08459 15 15 15 (textphone 0845 601 5613).

Community Care Grants: Can be paid to help people to live in the community and to ease exceptional pressures on families. If you are on Income Support, Pension Credit or income-based Jobseeker's Allowance you can apply for help with certain costs (eg. clothing, furniture, minor repairs to your home). You do not have to pay a Community Care Grant back. Any savings you have over £500 (£1,000 if you are 60 or over) will reduce any grant awarded.

These grants are discretionary and are awarded if there is enough money in the Social Fund budget to pay you.

Budgeting Loan: If you have been on Income Support, Pension Credit or income-based Jobseeker's Allowance for six months you can apply for an interest-free loan. They are intended to help with one-off expenses for which a person has been unable to budget (eg. household equipment or footwear). Any savings you have over £1,000 (£2,000 if you are 60 or over) will reduce any loan you get. A repayment amount is deducted from your benefit.

Crisis Loan: Available to anyone, whether they are on benefits or not. They are designed to help you out in an emergency and will be paid if this is the only way to avoid serious damage or serious risk to health or safety. You may be refused a crisis loan if you are likely to have insufficient money to repay it.

How do I Claim?

Claim by calling the Social Fund application line on 0845 608 8671. To claim a crisis loan call 0800 032 7950.

The Independent Living Fund provides support to disabled people to enable them to choose to live in the community. Funding can be used to pay for the personal and domestic care that you need in order to remain living at home. You must be receiving, or about to receive, services or direct payments from your local authority.

You must:

- be aged between 16 and 65
- get the highest rate of Disability Living Allowance care component
- be on a low income (Income Support or equivalent) after paying for the care you need, and
- have savings under £22,250
